Back injury resulting from rear-end collision earns $300,000 settlement

A young man, a computer specialist for a furniture company, was injured when his car was rear ended by a truck operated by an excavating company. He suffered lower back injury, but had pre-existing congenital conditions, and his original attorney was making little progress trying to negotiate with the excavators' insurance company. Also, his employer was able to accommodate his restrictions, so work loss was minimized even though he had significant pain from the accident.

The young man came to Liever, Hyman & Potter. Despite our client's congenital conditions, the Berks County, Pennsylvania law firm was able to win a settlement of $300,000.
