Overhanging branch fells motorcycle passenger

A passenger on a motorcycle suffered massive facial injuries when she was struck by an overhanging branch during a night-time ride on a rural Pennsylvania road. The injured woman was represented by the Berks County law firm of Liever, Hyman & Potter. Her lawyers recovered the $500,000 policy limit from the owner of the property, plus $450,000 from the township responsible for maintaining the road and trimming overhanging trees.
