Plant tank explosion injury settled for $1.9 MM

A subcontractor hired by a manufacturer to paint a storage tank was severely burned when the tank exploded.

"It was an unusually complex case," commented attorney Ed Houseman, of Liever, Hyman & Potter, the Pennsylvania law firm who represented the injured worker. "We hired the safety expert who 'wrote the book' on these explosions. He addressed the safety precautions that should have been taken. We also presented a 'day in the life' video documenting the debilitating effects of the injuries upon our client's life."

The case was settled for $1,900,000.
