Sidewalk trip settled for $100,000

A Berks County, Pennsylvania businesswoman was walking an elderly customer back to her car when she tripped on a buckled sidewalk that was located at the border between two different owners' sidewalks. The woman hit her face and suffered facial fractures that required surgery. Each property owner blamed the other for the dangerous condition. The law firm of Liever, Hyman & Potter achieved a settlement in the amount of $100,000, paid equally by the insurance companies for each owner.
